OBITUARY

George Vest Guyer, eldest son of Geo. W. and Clara L. Guyer, died suddenly of heart failure in Guatemala City, Central America, June 10, 1922.

George Vest Guyer was born near Boonville, Missouri, Wednesday, October 12, 1881. In October, 1885, he went with his parents to McKinney, Texas. Later, in 1893, the family came to Clayton, New Mexico.

His early education was obtained in the common schools of Texas and New Mexico with his father as teacher, and such were the only institutions of learning he ever attended. History, biography, geography and language were his favorite studies. He began attendance at school at the age of seven. At the age of ten he showed unusual knowledge of history and geography. Napoleon was his favorite general and at the age of ten he could recite incidents in the lives of Napoleon and his marshals that surprised collegiate graduates. At the age of twelve when he entered the Latin class, Caesar became a great favorite with him. It was his knowledge of Latin that made the Spanish language come easy to him as well as other derivatives of that language, nearly all of which he mastered.

He underwent the government examination for translator and interpreter of the Spanish and English languages and was expecting to be sent to the Philippine Islands in that capacity, but on account of the early peace settlement did not go.

At the age of fourteen he went to work for A. W. Thompson in a drug store in Clayton, and later worked in the bookkeeping department of Herzstein & Weil of Clayton. In 1903 he was at the head of the bookkeeping department of Goldenburg & Company of Tucuman, New Mexico, when he became acquainted, and associated, with Boaz Long, son of Judge E. V. Long, of East Las Vegas, New Mexico, who has the following to say:

George Vest Guyer, commonly known by most of his friends as George Guyer, while some others called him Vest Guyer, was born near Boonville, Mo., in 1881, his parents being George W. Guyer and Clara L. Grove.

"I know little of his early education in 1903 by Judge E. V. Long of East Las Vegas as a young man capable of rendering excellent service in Latin-America on account of his knowledge of the Spanish language.

"In 1904-1909 he worked with me, spending most of his time in old Mexico. During 1909-1910, he was in Cuba. On May 24th, 1912, he married the well-known coloratura soprano, Regina Vicarino. The couple spent 1913 and 1914 in Europe, where "Vicarino" sang in opera in Italy and Austria. They were in London on their way back to the United States when the great war broke out in 1914. In 1915, Mr. Guyer directed an opera in which his wife was the leading soprano, on a nine months' tour of parts of South America. During the trip Venezuela and Colombia were visited and later the company spent some time at Panama and Puerto Rico. The only child, Regina V. Guyer, was born in New York, January 19, 1916.

"Mr. Guyer was connected with the Lehigh Portland Cement company during 1917 and 1918, and in April, 1919, went to the Argentine Republic, representing the Federal Export Company of New York. He returned to New York in 1920 where he resided until February, 1922, when he went to Central America for a brief sojourn. It was just before his departure date for his return trip when he died suddenly from angina pectoris.

"George Guyer was a great student of the history of music, was an accomplished pianist and quite a literateur. In 1913, he served as confidential aide to Governor Osborne, then under-secretary of state, while on a special mission to Haiti and San Domingo. In December, 1915, he assisted our government at the Second Pan-American Scientific Congress which was held in Washington. George Guyer was widely known in Mexico City, Buenos Aires, Havana, Caracas and Bogota."

He leaves surviving him his wife, Regina and little daughter, Mimi, of New York; his father and mother; his elder sister, Mrs. Harry C. Thompson of Denver; his younger brothers, Grover S. Guyer of Clovis, N. M., and William R. Guyer, of Folsom, N. M.; his two younger sisters, Mrs. O. P. Easterwood, and Miss Lillian Guyer, both of Clayton.

Lucius Dills, grand master of the Masonic lodge for the State of New Mexico, visited Clayton Lodge last Saturday night, and delivered a lecture, which proved very interesting and instructive.

Just arrived at City Drug Store, a large assortment of Sheffield Silver. See Bobbie.

Walter Johnson and family formerly of Clayton, but now of Colorado, are visiting in Clayton today, having stopped off on their way home from their vacation, spent in Kansas and other points east.
